DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments, see REMARKS/ARGUMENTS, filed 12/17/2007, with respect to the rejection(s) of claim(s) 1-20 under 35 USC 102 and 103 have been fully considered and are persuasive. Therefore, the rejection has been withdrawn. However, upon further search and consideration, a new ground(s) of rejection is made in view of Hu et al.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Hu et al.

As per claim 1, Hu et al. discloses a refrigerator comprising a cabinet with a fresh food compartment and a freezer compartment, a passage/damper between the compartments (mullion damper 200), a refrigeration system including evaporator fan 214 and air stirring fan 212 operable at variable speeds (Figure 2), plurality of sensors (172, 174, 176, 178), and control system (Figures 2-7) controlling the damper position (step 264), the speed of the compressor 219, speed of the evaporator fan 214, speed of the stirring fan 212 based on the sensors (Figures 2 and 3B).

As per claim 2, Hu et al. discloses freezer compartment temperature sensor 246.

As per claims 3 and 4, Hu et al. discloses varying compressor speed based on freezer temperature and freezer target temperature (see vertical axis of Figure 5, which incorporates both freezer temperature and freezer target temperature).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 5, 6, and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hu et al.

As per claims 5 and 6, Hu et al. teaches freezer compartment sensor 176, evaporator sensor 178, fresh food compartment sensor 172. Hue et al. does not teach an ambient temperature sensor. However, the use of ambient temperature sensors in conjunction with refrigerators is generally old and well known in the art. Further, Applicant's claim does not specifically state that the control algorithm uses all of the sensors, but rather it uses data from the group as a whole. Accordingly, it does not require that the algorithm must use data from an ambient temperature sensor, rather only that an ambient temperature sensor be present. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to add an ambient temperature sensor to the system of Hu et al. for a whole variety of purposes completely unrelated to the claimed control algorithm (see for example outside temperature sensor 62 of Temmyo et al.). Official notice is further taken that it would have been obvious to place the sensor near the inlet of the condenser since this is where the system interfaces with the outside.

As per claim 10, official notice is taken that it is generally well known and an obvious matter of engineering design choice to place the refrigerant system above the cabinet shell.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 7-9 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 11-18 and 20 are allowed.
